

ULTRASOUND & YOUR PREGNANCY

These exams are special because you and your significant other may wish to see your baby, or to learn the sex. We understand. However, your visit is a formal medical examination and that must be our priority. We will provide you with a CD containing a few pictures of your baby at the end of the exam.

PLEASE NOTE:

Cell phones must be turned off in examination room. No personal photography or digital recording of exam is permitted.

Observing The Baby

During the examination, we request that you allow the technologist to concentrate on and perform the ultrasound scan. Images taken by the technologist are interpreted by a radiologist and your doctor will receive the report.

One support person is welcome to sit at the head of the bed while the exam is performed. Those accompanied by children are asked to remain in the waiting room. Your children and other observers are welcome to come in to view the baby after the medical exam is complete.

The Sex Of Your Baby

ONLY if you wish to know the gender of your baby, will we attempt to determine this. Fetal position as well as age of the baby may make this impossible.

Thank-you for your cooperation.

Your technologist can answer any additional questions you may have.
